Chapter One-An Undying Love

Sorry if this isn't very good. It's my first story. Hopefully they will get better as I go along. I also have to say a few standard things first. I do not own Wings of Fire. These characters are not mine except for my OCs (obviously). Blah, blah, blah I'm sure you get the point.

I woke up to the sunlight drifting through the leaf windows of my hut. Excited I got up and ran outside to find Deathbringer. I didn't have to search for long though, because I ran into him just as I stepped outside. I stepped back trying (and not succeeding) to fight the pink growing on my scales. "Do you ever sleep?" I asked him finally getting my scales under control.

"I need to protect you Grumpypants." Deathbringer replied giving me the smug smile that I had fallen in love with. I snorted as my scales once again turned pink. This time I just gave up trying to control them altogether. He knew that I liked him so what was the point?

"Come on." I said spreading my wings out. "We have to leave now if we want to get to Jade Mountain by noon. With that I took off into the sky with Deathbringer behind me.

After flying for what seemed like an eternity Deathbringer pulled ahead of me and started to decent into the rain forest below. Curious, I followed him. We came to a stop on a tree branch high above the ground.

"What are we doing here?" I questioned looking at him like he was crazy. "Last time I checked this was the rain forest not Jade Mountain."

"I wanted to make sure that no one was following us." Deathbringer explained giving another one of his smug smiles. I just rolled my eyes at him as I put my head on his shoulder. I felt his wings wrap around me. I looked up at him, blushing, and we kissed. When we finally pulled apart I heard him whisper "Believe it or not your safety matters to me. You are my entire world Glory. I don't know what I would do without you.". I turned even more pink.

When Deathbringer was completely sure that no one was following us we took off into the sky, resuming our journey to Jade Mountain and my friends.

Please comment down below about what you thought. Also make sure to tell me if you want me do another ship. Glorybringer is by far my favorite ship though. I am basically obsessed with them so don't even bother asking me to pair one of them with someone else.

Chapter Two-Jade Mountain

In no time at all I could see the tall mountain rising up in the distance. Its jagged peak shining in the sunlight. I put on a burst of speed startling Deathbringer as I took off towards Jade Mountain.

When I finally touched down with Deathbringer right behind me in the entrance hall of Jade Mountain I saw what an amazing place my friends had turned this into. It looked amazing especially with all of the sunlight pouring in, illuminating everything it touched. While I was still admiring the room Deathbringer walked up and put a wing around me. "They really have outdone themselves haven't they?" I felt sad for a moment that I couldn't be with them to run this place.

"They're here! They're finally here!" Sunny shouted. Moments later Sunny, Tsunami, Clay, Peril, Riptide, Starflight, and Fatespeaker emerged from one of the hallways.

"Aww! You guys look so cute together!" Tsunami cooed an evil grin planted on her face. Deathbringer quickly took his wing off of me while I stood there blushing like crazy staring at my talons. Tsunami started laughing when she saw this.

Seconds later Sunny came running over to me to give me a hug. I laughed as she nearly knocked me over. Soon my friends were gathered around us asking us how things were going.

"Has anyone else tried to kill you?" Clay asked fear rising in his voice.

"They have and I have stopped them, because I am such an awesome assassin." Deathbringer said puffing out his chest. I rolled my eyes at him and was met with him bumping my wing.

"How was your flight here?" Sunny asked.

I looked at Deathbringer before answering. "It was...um..it was fine." I replied not wanting to tell them what really happened.

"Oh I'm having a vision!" Fatespeaker yelled rubbing her forehead. "I see that we will have walrus very soon!"

"You know that your visions aren't real, right?" Starflight asked.

"Of course they're real!" Fatespeaker replied. "I have them all the time!"

"What are you doing here Riptide?" I asked trying to change the subject before an argument broke out.

"I just figured I'd stop by for a visit." he replied shrugging.

I noticed that Peril was standing at the back of the room looking down at her talons. I felt bad for her always having to be careful of what she touched and not being able to touch anyone. The only person she could touch was Clay. Apparently Clay noticed this too because he said "Why don't you show them their room?".

"Sure." Peril said not looking up from the ground.

She quickly walked into one of the hallways with Deathbringer and I following a good distance behind her. When we reached our room and had walked inside Peril turned around and began walking back down the hallway. "Oh ya." Peril began turning around. "Clay said to tell you guys that dinner will be in a little bit, and we figured that you guys would be tired after your long fly here so we'll leave you guys alone." With that she walked off leaving just the two of us.

Realizing just how tired I was I lied down. A moment later I felt Deathbringer lay down next to me. He put his wing around me and I put my head on his chest. Slowly my eyes drifted closed as I fell asleep.

Yes! Two chapters in one day. I am so happy right now. Someone actually read my stuff! That is like a dream come true for me.

Chapter Three-Marriage Proposal

I woke up to a strange sound. Was that a cow mooing? I opened my eyes to find out that indeed it was. A cow stood in front of me urgently mooing as though it was telling me something. "Glory I think I'm hearing things." Deathbringer muttered with his eyes closed. "I keep on hearing a cow mooing."

As if in response the cow gave a loud "Moo!" and walked over Deathbringer's tail. Alarmed he sat up as I laughed at him.

"Why is there a cow in here?" He cried swiping at the cow with his talons.

"No idea." I replied watching Deathbringer's feeble attempts to catch the cow. "Maybe it wanted to get eaten?"

The cow seemed to understand the last part because it took off down the hallway. A moment later Tsunami and Sunny were standing in the doorway. "Have you seen a cow run by?" Tsunami asked panting.

"Yeah." Deathbringer replied. "When you catch it could you please tell it that it is rude to step on someone's tail while they are sleeping?"

I gave an amused snort. "It just took off down the hallway." I informed them.

"Thanks." Sunny called over her shoulder as they chased after the cow.

"Come on." I said as I walked towards the door. "Let's go have dinner."

When everyone was in the prey center and happily munching on dinner Deathbringer suddenly coughed very loudly. Everyone turned to look at him. He got down on one knee took my talons in his hand and pulled out a box containing a beautiful ring. I stared at him wide eyed knowing what he was doing. "Queen Glory." Deathbringer began. "I have loved you since the moment I met you. Will you make me the happiest dragon alive and marry me?" I stared at him shocked for a moment before answering. "Yes!" I cried as my friends cheered. I hugged Deathbringer and we kissed. When we pulled apart he put the ring on my finger.

It was the most beautiful ring that I had ever seen. It had colorful vines with a diamond sitting in the middle of them. I loved it. I smiled to myself knowing that I was going to marry Deathbringer.

Fan girl squeal! I was so excited when I was writing this. I also had so much fun writing this. I will try to post more, but I am pretty busy.

Chapter Four-Wedding Day

Today was by far the happiest, most exciting, nothing can go wrong kind of day in my life. Today I was going to marry Deathbringer. As butterflies had a party in my stomach my friends put the finishing touches on my outfit.

"Done!" Sunny exclaimed beaming with pride at her work. I stared into the mirror placed in front of me. Staring back at me was a rose pink dragon with white flowers covering her wingtips and forming a crown. I smiled at myself.

"Time to go!" Kinkajou cried as she came bouncing in nearly blinding all of us with her neon pink scales.

"My eyes!" Tsunami yelled as she covered her eyes. "I thought we agreed on light pink dresses not neon!"

"Oh sorry!" Kinkajou apologized as she changed her scales back.

We all walked out of my house and began the procession. I watched as Kinkajou walked down the aisle first scattering flower petals everywhere. I was glad that she was the flower girl. Next my bridesmaids Fatespeaker, Tsunami, and Sunny began walking.

Jambu came up next to me. "You look really pretty." He whispered to me. I looked up at my brother and smiled. He would be walking me down the aisle because I had no father. As the music played I began my procession to the countless number of flowers circling the alter and my new life. As I walked past all of the wedding guests I saw all of my subjects and most of the Nightwings.

After what seemed like forever Grandeur, our preacher, finally said "Do you, Deathbringer, take Queen Glory of the Rainwings and Nightwings to be your lawfully wedded wife?"

"I do." Deathbringer said giving me his signature smug smile.

"And do you, Queen Glory of the Rainwings and Nightwings, take Deathbringer to be your lawfully wedded husband?" Grandeur asked.

"I do." I said.

"You may now kiss the bride." Grandeur finished.

As we kissed everyone clapped and cheered.

Sorry I haven't updated in a while. I have been busy working on my other story Everything About Everything About Wings of Fire. Check it out! Also my writing process was write a sentence, nearly faint of excitement, take a lap around the house screaming "Glorybringer for life!" and then repeat. Also I need names. One boy and one girl Rainwing and Nightwing hybrid.

Chapter Five-Eggs

I paced around nervously on the edge of my tree hut giving an occasional worried glance at a nest with two perfect eggs with all sorts of colors swirling through them. Deathbringer sat watching me.

"Sit down." Deathbringer told me. Reluctantly I sat down beside him and he put a wing around me.

"What if I'm a terrible mother?" I asked as I stared at the one full moon in the sky. That meant that our dragonets might have powers. "What if they hate me?"

"You're going to be a great mother and they're not going to hate you." Deathbringer reassured me. "Wow. I can't believe that I'm going to be a father."

We both sat in silence as we waited for our eggs to hatch. Suddenly a crack appeared along one of the eggs. "Deathbrigner they're hatching." I said as I watched in amazement. Another crack appeared along the egg. Slowly a tiny dragonet worked her way out of the egg until a there was a huge cracking sound and the egg broke into several pieces leaving my daughter standing there. Quickly I picked her up and held her close to me. We all watched as her little brother broke free from his egg and sent it breaking into several pieces. Deathbringer picked up my son and we stared at our beautiful children.

Finally I asked "What should we name them?". We fell into silence as we thought.

"How about Raindew?" I suggested.

"Perfect!" Deathbringer cried. I smiled as I watched Raindew giggle happily. Seeing his sister happy our other dragonet joined in.

"What about Darkshadow?" I suggested as I watched our son.

"That sounds like the perfect name!" Deathbringer replied. "Now the Kingdom has Princess Raindew and Prince Darkshadow."

Carefully we put them down on the ground to explore. I noticed that Raindew had silver teardrop shaped scales by her eyes. Looking over at Darkshadow I noticed that he had silver teardrop scales by his eyes. Realizing that they both could read minds I watched as both of them tilted their heads at me as though listening to my thoughts. Wanting to see if this was true I started to think of butterflies. Immediately they both started giggling. I smiled as we watched them play together. Raindew had the body of a Nightwing, except she had Rainwing tail with the ruff around her neck and horns, and she could also change color. Darkshadow had the body of a Nightwings, except for the tail and he could change color. They were both beautiful.

Eventually I picked up Raindew and Darkshadow in my arms and Deathbringer put his wing around me. I put my head on his chest and we all fell asleep as a family.

That was so much fun to write. I hope that you all enjoyed it. I was so excited the entire time that I was writing it.

Chapter Six-Assassination Attempt

I sat on a branch of a tree watching as two dragonets played on the pavilion. Raindew had Darkshadow pinned down and looked at her brother with a smug smile on her face as he struggled to get up. They were now two months old and liked to play with each other.

"Raindew don't hurt your brother." I warned her.

"I won't Mom." She replied, taking her eyes off of Darkshadow. Seeing his opportunity he quickly threw his sister off of him. Returning her attention to her brother Raindew set off after him. I watched with a smile on my face as they chased each other around.

Two silver stars went flying through the air. Time seemed to slow down as I watched them, helpless, flying towards my children. I saw the look of horror on their faces. Time sped up again and they both went flying into Darkshadow. Immediately Raindew ran over to her brother.

"Mom!" She screamed, but I was already flying towards them.

Hearing her cry for help one of my guards, Heliconia, came rushing out of the hut. She ran over to us, and seeing Darkshadow she asked "What do you want me to do Queen Glory?"

"Tell Deathbringer to met us at the healer's hut." I told her, keeping my voice calm even though on the inside I was panicking. She nodded and flew off.

I turned my attention back to my children. Carefully I picked up Darkshadow and flew off towards the healer's hut. With Raindew following me we made it to the healer's hut quickly. I rushed inside and was quickly surrounded by three healers.

Five minutes later Deathbringer came racing in. He joined us by Darkshadow's bed and looked at Darkshadow sadly. "What happened?" He asked not taking his eyes off of his son.

"An assassination attempt." I said. I quickly explained what happened to him and the healers.

Raindew walked over to me crying. Realizing how upset she was I put my wing around her. "Is he going to be okay?" She asked, voicing the question that we were all wondering.

"I don't know sweetie." I replied, feeling tears falling down my cheeks. For once I didn't care that I was crying because to me there were more important things.

That night after Raindew was asleep I turned to Deathbringer and asked "Who could have done this?"

"I'm not sure." Deathbringer replied. "Whoever it was they clearly don't like us." Shooting Deathbringer a glare I went back to thinking.

"Based on what you said it was probably a Nightwing." Deathbringer said after a little while.

"We need to find them before they do anything else." I stated. Deathbringer nodded in agreement.

Worried I lay down to sleep. Eventually sleep finally overtook me and very slowly I closed my eyes.

Sorry to anyone who thought that this was really sad. Also thank you to anyone who commented and read this story so far it means a lot to me.

Chapter Seven-Assassin

I stared out of the window watching the Sun slowly set over the trees, casting a shadow across the village. I didn't pay attention though as I thought about the past week. We still hadn't found out who the assassin was, or why they did it. I hadn't slept much the past week either. I was too busy worrying about Darkshadow.

My thoughts were interrupted by Deathbringer as he came crashing through the door. "Glory we have a lead." He panted, trying to catch his breath.

"Who is it?" I asked.

"You aren't going to believe this, but a Rainwing came up to us earlier and said that they saw someone who might have done it." He took a deep breath before continuing. "They said that they saw a Skywing heading towards the pavilion." Deathbringer waited for the information to sink in before saying anything else. "Do you know anyone who would have done this?"

Worry slowly crept over me again as the answer dawned on me. "The dragons who supported Scarlet." I said slowly, not wanting to believe it.

"Why did they attack you then?" Deathbringer asked.

"I was the one who melted Scarlet's face." I replied. Suddenly a terrible thought came over me. "That means that my friends are in danger too! I have to warn them!"

"I'll send a messenger out immediately." Deathbringer told me, right before rushing out.

I quickly started going through all of the possible suspects. My only thought was hoping that the messenger would get there in time.

That was a major plot twist! Thank you for all of your positive comments. It really means a lot to me.

Chapter Eight-Together Again

I raced towards Jade Mountain with Deathbringer behind me. We had left almost immediately after the messenger left. I had to help my friends catch that Skywing. I needed to know who hurt Darkshadow and Raindew. With them in mind I beat my wings faster and soon I could make out the peak of Jade Mountain.

Five minutes later I landed in the entrance hall and was immediately tackled by Sunny who started asking me questions like "Are they okay?" and "What are they like?". It then took both Tsunami and Clay to pry her off of me.

"Nice to see you too." I said, trying to catch my breath. "What are who like?" I asked Sunny as Deathbringer helped me to my feet.

"Raindew and Darkshadow." Sunny replied, jumping up and down in excitement.

"While Raindew is still pretty shaken up about what happened." I explained slowly. "Darkshadow is....um....he's....um....he's in critical condition, but the healers think that he'll be okay. They aren't sure though because his back leg isn't in good condition. They are going to need to remove it." I finished as Deathbringer put his wing around me.

"That's terrible." Sunny said as her face fell.

"Hey now he'll be like me." Clay said, trying to lighten the mood. The most I could do was give him a weak smile.

"I'm sure he'll be fine." Starflight reassured me. Fatespeaker nodded her head in agreement from beside him.

"Come on. Let's go catch us a Skywing." Tsunami said, trying to change the subject. "Riptide and I have been working on a trap, and Peril's going around threatening to burn him."

"We can't harm him." I said while shaking my head.

"Why not?" Tsunami challenged.

"We need to interrogate him and last time I checked it's pretty hard to question a dead dragon." I replied. Tsunami just snorted in response. As good as it was to be together again, Tsunami still annoyed me. Together we all walked into Jade Mountain to set our trap.

I just wanted to let you guys know that I will try to update more frequently, and thanks to everyone who read my story.

I also wanted to let you guys know the pairings.

GloryXDeathbringer

TsunamiXRiptide

ClayXPeril

StarflightXFatespeaker (Sorry to all you Sunnyflight fans)

Sunny is alone.

I don't expect you all to agree with all the pairings, but I do expect you to respect them.

Chapter Nine-Trap

"Ta-da!" Sunny announced showing me the "trap" they had set up. In the middle of the floor a net lay, which Riptide was currently covering with leaves as Peril observed from a safe distance.

"Please don't tell me this is your all powerful-amazing-sure to catch a Skywing-trap? I asked, afraid of what the answer was.

"Yah. It is. What's wrong with it?" Tsunami asked defensively.

Before I could open my mouth Deathbringer suddenly jumped in. "For starters it's flammable. Also isn't a pile of leaves is completely obvious?"

"Why should we listen to you?" Tsunami snapped back.

"I'm an assassin/bodyguard." He replied coolly. "If anyone can catch that Skywing it's me."

"While you didn't catch him the first time." Peril chimed in, clearly trying to help Tsunami out. Everyone else shot her a look as she flinched, realizing what she had said. Poor Peril, still trying to get the other Dragonets of Destiny to like her. Personally I didn't mind her that much. I mean my mate was the person who tried to kill Blaze and me.

"It's fine." I reassured them quickly. "Does anyone have any ideas for a trap?"

"What if we put the net on the ceiling?" Riptide asked.

I sighed as I tried to remind myself that Riptide was just trying to help. "We have a few ideas." Starflight said, gesturing to him and Fatespeaker.

"Me too!" Sunny exclaimed.

"I have a few of my own." Deathbringer said slowly.

"Perfect!" I said, a smile on my face. "You guys can all work on a trap. Tsunami and Riptide can check by the river, Clay and Peril can check the mountains, and I'll check the sky." I finished. Everyone nodded in agreement and we went our separate ways. I began my walk back to the entrance hall.

I hope you guys liked it. I will try to update as much as possible, but I am really busy lately. Please let me know what you guys think.

Chapter Ten-Flashback

I beat my wings as fast as I could as I worried that Deathbringer would change his mind and come racing after with a speech about how I need protection. I decided to land on top of one of the mountains to start looking for this mystery Skywing.

Just as I landed with a soft "Thump" on the ledge heard a soft "click". Whirling around I discovered it was a.....scavenger. A scavenger that was currently running away from me, waving its arms above its head as it babbled in its own language. I love Sunny and all, but I'll never understand what she sees in scavengers. I mean what it just did din't even look slightly intelligent. As if it had heard my thoughts it turned around and stared at me with its big brown eyes and scruff of brown fuzz that came down to its waist.

When it saw me looking at it, it went right back to babbling as it ran down the mountain. I shook my head and went back to searching the horizon. After about five minutes of searching I found a river. For some reason it reminded me of the one back under the mountain.

A three year-old dragonet sat by the river washing the numerous cuts, bruises, and burns that covered her scales from today's battle training with Kesteral. When she thought she looked good enough for the other dragonets not to question her, she changed her scales to a light purple and stood up. Just as she was about to leave she heard footsteps. Freezing, the young Rainwing quickly turned invisible, fearing that it was one of her guardians. To her relief it was the other dragonets. Just as she was about to turn her scales back to the light purple they had been before when the young Seawing started talking.

"I just don't understand why they got a Rainwing that's all." They young Seawing stated, turning to look at a Mudwing, a Sandwing, and a Nightwing.

"Tsunami we've been over this before." The Nightwing replied. "It was just easiest to get a Rainwing egg." Ouch. That hurt.

"Who cares how we got Glory." The little Sandwing stated as the Mudwing nodded his head in agreement. "Also how do you know that Starflight?"

"That's what Kestrel told me." Starflight said defensively. After a moment he added "Sunny's right though. Who cares why we have Glory, all that matters is that she's here."

"I just meant that it would have been more useful to have someone with more fighting skills." Tsunami interjected.

"She does have a point." The Mudwing said, speaking for the first time since the conversation started.

"Clay!" Sunny cried. "That was mean guys."

"It's also true and you know it." Tsunami snapped back.

As if on cue Clay's stomach rumbled, ending the fight. "I'm hungry. Let's go get some food."

"You're always hungry Clay!" Sunny said with a laugh as they left the room.

Glory changed her scales to a light purple as tears welled up in her eyes. Telling herself she was not going to cry she quickly blinked them away and followed the others.

I was brought back to reality by the sound of wingbeats. Still dazed from the flashback I searched for the source of the noise. I quickly found the Skywing flying towards Jade Mountain.

Knowing that I only had so much time to warn my friends I leapt into the air and raced back towards Jade Mountain.

I hope that all of you guys enjoyed this chapter and thank you guys so much for reading it. You have no idea how much this means to me. I hoped you liked it.

Chapter Eleven-Queen Ruby

I raced back towards Jade Mountain as fast as I could, hoping that I would be able to get there in time to warn my friends. I landed and took off running trough the halls. Everything was a blur as I ran, so I didn't see Tsunami until it was too late. We collided and we both went flying.

"What was that for?" Tsunami asked as Riptide helped her up.

"Sorry." I said slightly dazed as Deathbringer steadied me. "Also there's a Skywing coming this way."

"Everyone except for Riptide and me into the other cave." Deathbringer said as he herded us into a small cave were we could barely see what was happening.

Deathbringer and Riptide both grabbed a rope and stood just out of sight of anyone coming through the hallway. Riptide hid behind a rock, trying not to show his blue scales, and Deathbringer sank into the shadows. Sunny came up next to me as she tried to see.

"I can't wait to catch that Skywing!" Sunny said enthusiastically. Tsunami quickly shushed her as we heard approaching footsteps.

Starflight tilted his head slightly as he tried to listen. At my last visit to Jade Mountain he had told me that he was trying to memorize the sound of everyone when they walked. He was probably listening to see if he recognized them.

As the footsteps grew closer they got louder and louder, like there was more then one dragon. Starflight seemed to realize that something was wrong too and yelled "Wait!" just as the Skywings rounded the corner, but it was too late. We heard rope snapping and then a Skywing thrashing around in the net.

Curious, we all came running out of the cave to see Cliff, Queen Ruby's son, thrashing around in the net as Deathbringer tried to get him out. Behind him stood a shocked Queen Ruby standing with two of her guards as Riptide attempted to explain what happened.

"Clay go help Deathbringer get Cliff from the net. I'll go talk to Queen Ruby." I said.

Five minuets later everyone had calmed down and were talking about the Skywing.

"A couple of weeks ago one of my prisoners escaped. She was loyal to Scarlet and was a danger to other dragons." Queen Ruby started. "We have reason to believe that she came here to seek revenge."

"Trust me we know." I replied. "What is her name?"

"Her name's Amaranth." Queen ruby replied. "Amaranth was one of Scarlet's most loyal guards, and I would not put it past her to come after you guys. This was what we found in her cell after she escaped."

Queen Ruby handed me a scroll, and carefully I unrolled it. On it were two names, Raindew and Darkshadow.

"We have to warn them." I said, panic rising in my voice.

Sorry it took so long to update, but Glory refused to work for a week. Something about wanting a raise.

Glory: "It isn't my fault that you didn't update!"

Me: "Yes it is."

Glory: "You're the one who was too busy playing soccer, and yes now I want a raise."

Me: "Never."

Chapter Twelve-Raindew and Darkshadow

As if on cue a messenger Rainwing came running into the room, his scales pale green with fright. "Queen Glory." he said, giving a small bow.

"What is it?" I replied as he stood up slowly. I kept my voice calm and forced my scales to a light purple before they could give away my true emotions.

"Well.....you see.....it's.....um.....there's a.....um.....a problem in the rain forest." he mumbled. I noticed that he nervously shifted his weight from one foot to the other. Something was wrong.

"What is it?" I asked. Dread started to fill me as a wave of worries crashed into my brain.

"The Skywing from before came back and when we went to see if Raindew and Darkshadow were okay they were gone and so was the Skywing." the messenger said as quickly as possible.

I stood there, numb, as I let the information sink in. The others had already made up their minds about what to do though.

"When I find Amaranth I am going to make sure that she dies a slow and painful death." Tsunami growled as Sunny nodded her head in agreement.

"What about questioning her?" Starflight asked.

"That was before she took Raindew and Darkshadow." Tsunami replied. "Don't worry Glory I'm sure they're fine."

"What if they're not though?" Peril asked, voicing what we had all been thinking.

"They're fine." Deathbringer said, confidently. "Raindew will keep Darkshadow safe, and I've been training her."

Everyone turned to me as though they were expecting me to say that Deathbringer was right. Instead I turned to the messenger and said "You can return to the rain forest now and tell the Rainwings that I will return soon and to send out search parties."

Looking relieved to be able to leave he quickly bowed and left the cave, leaving everyone still staring at me. I hardened my face and pushed any emotion out of my scales.

"You okay Glory?" Sunny asked, worry etched on her face.

"I'm fine." I said, my voice containing no emotion. "Thank you for the help Queen Ruby. I must return to the rain forest now though."

Queen Ruby nodded her head, and just as I was about to stand up a faint sound echoed throughout the cave. It sounded like small talons running towards us. Confused, we all tuned our heads towards the entrance of the cave. A few seconds later two young Rainwings came running in. One was missing a leg and looked scared. The other one stood in front of the other one and looked like she was ready to fight. She had a slash across her cheek and her face was coated in dry blood.

Sunny stepped foward and asked "who are you?" keeping her voice soft and welcoming. Sunny walked over to the one with the missing leg. "Are you hurt?" she asked worriedly.

Before he could answer her the protective one spoke up, her voice icy and cold. "He's fine, but if you come any closer you won't be." she growled.

"You're Glory's children aren't you?" Tsunami asked as I stepped out of the crowd with Deathbringer right behind me.

Ignoring Tsunami, Darkshadow pushed past his sister as he shouted "Mom!". Raindew turned around, saw us, and came running towards me.

"Are you guys alright?" I asked, as relief came flooding through me.

"We're fine Mom." Raindew replied as I hugged them.

We stood there, hugging, in the middle of the cave.

I made a new book. It's called Wings of Fire Torture Chamber. Feel free to check it out. I hope that you guys liked the story. Remember to comment your opinions.

Halloween

Today is Halloween! That means lots of candy and costumes. Yay! Instead of writing a chapter today I decided to give you guys a treat! HAHAHA! Get it. A treat. Like trick or treat. My terrible jokes always crack me up. Anyways I decided to do a special short. This going to be really weird though. This is the D.O.D. when they were younger.

The Sun slowly set behind the trees, casting a golden shadow over the rain forest as if it wanted to let everyone know that it was setting. I paced around my tree hut waiting for my friends to show up. Careful not to step on my Wonder Woman costume I went to go put the bowl of candy by the front door.

Sunny came bursting into the room with the others in tow. She was dressed up as a fairy. She had even painted her wings pink. Tsunami came in after, dressed as a ninja. Clay was dressed as a bucket of popcorn, and Starflight was a skeleton.

"Are you guys ready to go?" I asked, taking note of the setting Sun.

"I am!" Clay said, enthusiastically.

"When aren't you ready to get food?" Tsunami said with a laugh as Clay's stomach rumbled, causing all of us to start laughing too.

Pumpkin buckets in hand we flew to the first hut. It was Mango's and Orchid's. Smiling they handed us each a kit-kat bar.

As it got darker more and more dragons crowed the paths leading to the various huts. There were witches and ghosts, zombies and mummies, and basically any kind of costume that you could imagine. The words "Trick or Treat!" rang through the air a dragons rushed around with their costumes flying, trying to gather as much candy as they could.

As we kept walking our buckets slowly filled up. When we came to the last house Sunny and Clay practically bounced up the steps to ring the doorbell. A knight answered the door as we all cried "Trick or Treat!".

He smiled a toothy smile, the kind that makes you shiver and regret coming here in the first place. He reached back inside the house and yelled "Trick!" as he pulled a giant red lever. The porch fell from underneath us, not giving us enough time to react before we hit a hard concrete floor about twenty feet under the porch. Just as Tsunami tried to fly back up a metal gate close over the top, leaving us trapped.

"I got you now Queen Glory." The knight replied with the same cold smile as before.

"You're really good at that." I replied staring back at him with a smile on my face.

"What are you doing?" Starflight said, nudging me.

"You're going to make him mad at us!" Sunny whispered.

"Hand over the candy Glory." The knight said. Clay gasped as Tsunami elbowed him. "Come on you know you lost."

Reluctantly, I threw it up to him. With a smug smile on his face he opened the metal gate, and we all flew out of it. Clay and Sunny held Tsunami back as I walked up to him.

"Fine you win." I said. Smiling I kissed him to my friend's horror.

"Glory!" Clay cried as they all stared at me in shock.

I started laughing as the knight took off his costume, revealing him to be, Deathbringer.

"Why would you do that?" Tsunami questioned, staring at Deathbringer.

"We made a bet that if I could trick Glory I got her candy, and if I couldn't trick her then she got my candy." He replied as he put a wing around me. "I win."

My costume is an archer. Wow that was random. Don't worry though, Glory is probably just going to steal her candy back. Also just to clarify Starflight was the skeleton, Tsunami was the ninja, Clay was the bucket of popcorn, Sunny was the fairy, Deathbringer was the knight, and Glory was Wonder Woman. I hope that you guys enjoyed this. I will go back to the actual story in the next chapter. Happy Halloween!

Chapter Thirteen-Amaranth

As we finally untangled ourselves from the hug Sunny squealed with delight. Happy, she practically bounced over to us.

"I'm so happy to finally meet you Raindew and Darkshadow!" Sunny exclaimed. "Your Mom has told us so much about you guys."

"I'm so glad we found you guys." Darkshadow said. "This big scary Skywing came in and tried to kill us. I would be dead if Raindew wasn't there."

"Are you guys half Rainwing and half Nightwing?" Clay asked, clearly not sure.

"No. We're scavengers." Raindew replied, rolling her eyes.

"Yes. There half Rainwing and half Nightwing." I interjected before Raindew could say anything else.

"Hey, look." Darkshadow said, changing the conversation. "Uncle Clay and I are the same." He gestured towards their two missing legs before looking up at Clay in awe. "You're just like me!"

"I guess I am." Clay said gently with a smile on his face. It clearly meant a lot to both of them that there was someone who had the same problem as them.

"Queen Glory." Queen Ruby said. "I must return to my kingdom now. I have been away for too long."

"Understood. Thank you for all your help." I replied as the Skywings left.

"What happened to you guys?" Tsunami asked.

"I woke up in the healers hut and it was suntime, so all of the healers were gone." Darkshadow began. "Then Raindew came in and asked if I was all right. Just as was about to answer her though a Skywing came in and said "If he is he won't be for long. Neither of you will be children of Glory.". The Skywing pulled out a knife and threw it at us, but Raindew pulled me out of the way just in time. Raindew then pulled out a dagger and threw it at the Skywing. It went right through her wing. When the Skywing cried out in pain Raindew and I made our escape. We flew out the window, but the Skywing followed us. She knocked Raindew into a tree, but Raindew came flying back and started fighting with the Skywing. The Skywing managed to cut Raindew across the face, so Raindew spit venom in the Skywing's face."

He finished the story, and for a moment no one said anything. Starflight finally broke the silence saying "Is anyone else scared?". Everyone except for Raindew raised at talon. Raindew just sat there smirking.

"Did I not say that I trained her?" Deathbringer asked, clearly proud of Raindew.

Raindew was clearly pleased with everyone's reactions and sat there happily.

She is Glory's daughter after all. Also please no fighting in the comment sections. I would like to say thank you to the people who stood up for me though. I will not delete any comments because I believe that everyone is entitled to their own opinions.

Chapter Fourteen-The Attack

It had been a month sense we had returned home from Jade Mountain. Raindew and Darkshadow were happy to be home. Deathbringer had eventually talked me into letting him train them. I had eventually agreed, and almost every day they went off to train with him.

It had quickly become apparent that Raindew had much more interest in training then Darkshadow did. As a result Raindew started training more frequently, learning complex skills. Darkshadow still showed some interest, but did not train near as often as she did. Instead he loved scrolls and was often up late reading them. They both went to school and received extra classes from Deathbringer on things that a royal would need to know, which mostly involved history, geography, and who was the Queen.

I had also begun to teach Raindew how the kingdom worked and she quickly learned what my duties were. Since both of them were royalty they were forced to have jewelry for special occasions. Raindew had a simple tiara made out of flowers and a matching necklace and bracelet. Darkshadow had an armband made out of silver that had three rubies in it, and he was only slightly more willing to wear it then Raindew. I of course, had to have a crown for official business, and I got stuck with a simple flower crown.

Raindew and Darkshadow were both happy while Deathbringer and I were just happy that they were happy. Everything seemed perfect until the attack on the rain forest.

Deathbringer and I went to sleep as the three moons began to rise in the night sky. I was tired after a long day of dealing with the Rainwings and Nightwings. About an hour after I had gone to sleep a noise awoke me. It sounded like a tree branch falling. I soon smelled smoke, and shook Deathbringer awake.

"Deathbringer wake up." I whispered.

"What?" He replied sleepily.

"I think there's a fire." I said.

Immediately he woke up. Together we walked over and looked out the window. Sure enough a few trees were on fire.

"You wake up Raindew and Darkshadow, and I'll try to go put out the fire." I said before flying off.

I flew down to were dragons had started to gather in the middle of town. I landed on the ground and started barking out orders to everyone. Within minuets the dragons had spread out to complete their assigned jobs.

I joined the group that was assigned to put out the fire, and met a dragon flying with a bucket of water in her hands. I quickly dumped it on the fire and handed it to another another dragon that was assigned to go get more water.

As the hours droned on we all fell into a system. One dragon would get the water and fly up to another dragon. That dragon would dump the water on the fire. Then they would hand the bucket to another dragon who would get more water. As the first rays of daylight crosses over the now smoldering trees we finally managed to put the fire out.

Tired I returned to my hut to find Deathbringer standing there with a Skywing in his clutches. The Skywing looked mad and I noticed that he had clearly fought Deathbringer over coming here from the many scratches across his body.

"Glory I found him trying to escape with four others." Deathbringer said. He too had several cuts, but he still looked in much better condition then the Skywing.

"Put him in the dungeon." I replied. "I'll interrogate him later."

Deathbringer nodded and promptly flew off with the Skywing.

This attack was clearly on purpose. Now we had to get the Skywing to answer all of our questions.

I decided to add some more excitement to this. I know that it was completely unexpected, but I felt like the story needed some more action. Thank you guys for reading and commenting. It means a lot to me.

A/N: New Story

I've reached a thousand reads! Thank you all a lot! You guys have no idea how much this means to me. I've always wanted other people to read my work that didn't include my family, and that happened and a lot more. I would like to thank all of you guys for voting and commenting. I love reading what you guys have to say about my story, both the negative and the positive.

Writing has always been a way for me to share what I love and express my feelings. Being able to know that someone has enjoyed my writing puts a smile on my face. In school I am bullied and have a hard time dealing with anxiety. Sense I started writing this story I have had the confidence to stick up for myself. My class makes fun of me because my best friend is a boy. They came up with a ship name for us and call it out when we are walking to our classes. They even try to push me in line that way I fall on top of him if we are standing next to each other. At dances they start chanting our ship name and pressure us to dance. Through all of this he has remained by my side though and we've stood up against them together. I have anxiety though, and this has only made it worse. Being able to read your comments had helped me though. It made me realize that someone likes my stories and they care enough to say that they do.

I am also doing a collab. with @CorieSparks and make sure to check it out. It is going to be about the Dragonet's of Destiny's kids.

Also I have been talking to two different people who want me to do two different ships involving Sunny. I have decided to make a new story called "Wings of Fire Ships" coming soon. I will do these two ships on here and any others that you guys want.

I want to say thank you guys for everything. You guys have encouraged me to keep on writing. I also want to say a special thanks to:

@CorieSparks for exchanging ideas with me.

@moonwatchersister for reading and commenting on my stories.

@Zana_Zoola14 for commenting positive things.

@GlorySOUL because I respect you for commenting your opinions and I love your stories.

@ggghhhyiy for suggesting a ship.

And

@That_One_Wyvern for also suggesting a ship.

There are a lot more people who I would like to thank, but these are just a few main ones. thank you guys again though for everything.

Thanksgiving

Happy Thanksgiving everyone! I hope you get to eat lots of turkey and gravy! I love Thanksgiving because you get to eat a lot of food. Also this will be with the D.O.D. and their families as they celebrate Thanksgiving at Jade Mountain.

I flew with Deathbringer and Jambu towards Jade Mountain. Today was Thanksgiving and we were going to celebrate with my friends and their families. When we landed we were greeted by my friends. With a smile on her face Sunny hugged me, taking me by surprise, and almost knocked me over.

"Where's everyone else?" I asked as Sunny let go of me.

"They're not here yet, but they should be soon." Starflight said.

"We brought some fruit." Jambu said as he handed over the basket full of a variety of different fruits.

"Thanks." Sunny said cheerily. "I'll go put it on the table."

"Are there seating arrangements?" Deathbringer asked when Sunny came back.

"Great now he's going to go on and on about seating arrangements." Tsunami said angrily as Starflight opened his mouth.

"While." Starflight began as I prepared myself for a boring speech. "We are going to have twenty guests, and to keep everything organized Fatespeaker and I came up with seating arrangements. I put Clay, Sunny, me, Tsunami, Glory, Deathbringer, Jambu, my father, Queen Coral, and then Aucklet all on one side. Then we put Peril, Queen Thorn, Fatespeaker, Riptide, Reed, Pheasant, Sora, Umber, Smolder and Flower, and Anemone on the other side of the table." Starflight finished. We all just stared at him in shock for putting this much work into where people sat. Suddenly we burst out laughing before we heard the sound of wing beats signaling that more people had arrived.

First Mastermind came in followed shortly after by Riptide.

"Are you sure that your Mom is not going to kill me?" Riptide asked with a worried expression on his face.

"I can't promise you anything." Tsunami replied.

Several minuets later Queen Coral and Tsunami's sisters arrived and soon after Clay's siblings arrived. Last to arrive was Sunny's Mom, Smolder, and his pet scavenger, Flower.

After talking for several minuets we walked into the prey center where an enormous table had been set up. When we all took our seats Clay stood up.

"I would like to thank everyone for coming today." Clay began his speech. "All of you guys mean a lot to us, and after we escaped from under the mountain we were happy to find you guys. You may not have been what we were expecting, but you guys turned out to be even better. Now let's eat!" Clay finished everyone clapped as he sat back down and began to eat.

"Do you think we have enough food?" Tsunami asked.

"Why wouldn't we?" Sunny replied. "There's a ton of food here."

"We also have Clay though." Tsunami pointed out. All of us laughed as we went back to eating our food.

"How has Jade Mountain been going?" I asked after a little while.

"It's been great." Clay said.

"It's amazing that different tribes are getting along." Starflight agreed.

"It's been awesome." Tsunami said.

"I love it." Sunny added. "We all miss you a lot though."

"Thanks guys." I responded. "I'm really glad that Jade Mountain has been going great."

We talked as we continued to eat, the sound of laughter filling the room. We were all happy to be here.

Hope that you guys have an awesome Thanksgiving. I'm thankful for all of you guys and that you guys like my story. Just in case you guys were wondering Clay, Sunny, Starflight, Tsunami, Riptide, Queen Coral, Aucklet, Anemone, Queen Thorn, Smolder and Flower, Mastermind, Reed, Pheasant, Umber, Sora, Fatespeaker, Peril, Jambu, Deathbringer, and Glory were there.

Chapter Fifthteen-The Interrogation

I sat at my desk writing scrolls as the Sun streamed in through the windows. I was writing to the other queens, asking them for any information on the Skywings that we had not been able to capture. Just as I finished checking them and setting them aside for the messenger to deliver Deathbringer came into the hut.

"The prisoner has requested to speak with you." He informed me.

"Let's go." I replied as I stood up. I took off with Deathbringer behind me, and soon we arrived at our destination, the dungeon.

The dungeon was far enough away from the village to allow the Rainwings and Nightwings to feel safe, but close enough that we could get there quickly. It is made out of metal and the inside is fireproof. As we approached the two guards positioned outside of the doors bowed and stepped aside for us.

I landed and walked inside. In the corner a Skywing sat with his feet bound together by chains.

"I heard that you wanted to speak with me." I stated as I approached him.

"That's correct." He said.

"What's your name?" I asked as Deathbringer came in behind me.

"My name is Coquelicot." The Skywing informed us.

"Well Coquelicot we have a few questions for you." I said to him.

"What are they?" Coquelicot replied.

"Who were you here with?" I asked.

"The other people that were loyal to Scarlet." He replied.

"What were their names?" I asked as I started to get mad.

"They were theirs." Coquelicot responded. He knew that he was making me mad, but I was not about to let him win.

"Why were you guys here?" I asked. I had not expected a straight answer, but I was surprised when he gave me one.

"To set the fire. We were hoping to kill you, but I guess we'll just have to try again." He informed me.

"You admitted to setting the fire." I said.

"I know because I did set the fire." Coquelicot responded.

Knowing that I was going to get no straight answers from him today I turned to leave.

"My companions will come back for me." Coquelicot said as I left.

I knew that he was probably right. We needed to be prepared for when they did.

I don't know what I'm doing anymore. I don't even know where this story is going. I am literally just making all of this up as I go along. I would like to apologize for my spontaneous story.

A/N: Burned

Last Tuesday one of my classmates got burned. He burned the right side of his face and his right hand. As a result he has been in the hospital for the past couple of days. The doctor thinks that his face should be fine, but they aren't entirely sure about his hand. Please pray for him.

My school is very small, with only one class for each grade. There are only thirteen people in my class, including me, so we are all very close. He's the youngest in the class, so he's like our baby brother. He's just this beautiful light shining in the dark and we all love him. We just want him to be safe. Please, I'm begging you, pray for him.

There are less then one hundred fifty people in our school and we managed to donate one thousand, three hundred dollars to his family. The entire class had been praying constantly and we even made cards that he was able to read.

This one boy has changed my life forever. He has inspired me to do what I love, write. Without him this story would probably never have existed.

The entire class just wants him to come home safe. Please pray for him. We all love him. Thank you to anyone that does. It means a lot to me.

Christmas

Merry Christmas! Hope that you guys got lots of presents and had fun! This will be the D.O.D. as they celebrate Christmas. Raindew and Darkshadow do not exist in this. It's really weird, but just go with it.

I was tackled by a yellow blur wearing a Santa Claus hat as soon as I landed at Jade Mountain Academy. However, I knew exactly who this was because this happened every time.

"Hi Sunny." I mumbled as I tried to get her off of me. "You're going to crush the presents."

"Sorry." The little Sandwing replied as she got off of me.

"Hi guys." I greeted as I turned to face the rest of my friends.

"Hi Glory." Fatespeaker said, cheerfully.

"Merry Christmas!" Clay, Starflight, Riptide, and Peril all said in union.

"You're under the mistletoe." Tsunami pointed out with a grin on her face.

Deathbringer gave me his smug smile and kissed me Tsunami laughed.

"Merry Christmas." He whispered.

"I hate you." I said as sarcastically as possible. He just laughed as we walked over to add our presents to the pile under the huge Christmas tree in the corner of the cave.

After we all talked for a little bit it was finally time to open presents. Sunny got an adorable bow, which she loved, Clay got a cow with a huge red bow on it, Starflight got scrolls, Tsunami got a painting of the ocean, Deathbringer got a scavenger, which he screamed at, along with a scroll, Riptide got a pretty piece of sea glass that was shaped like a whale, Peril got a fireproof necklace, Fatespeaker got a dream journal, and I got a picture of all of us. I loved my present and everyone else seemed to like their gifts too.

My favorite part though was that I got to spend it with my friends.

I hoped that you guys liked it. Merry Christmas! Have lots of fun! Remember to eat as much cookies as you can. Also remember to never listen to anything I say because I give terrible advice. Just ask my little sister. Please don't actually ask her. She'll go on a rant. Anyways I hope that you have a good holiday.

Chapter Sixteen-Coquelicot

"Put more guards around the dungeon." I told Deathbirnger. We were standing outside my hut as the Sun dipped lower into the sky. "We can't let him escape."

"Yes my Queen." Deathbringer replied with his usual grin. Rolling my eyes I choose to ignore him and instead walked into my hut for the night.

The next morning I woke up to my brother demanding to be let in.

"Glory!" Jambu cried from the outside. I sighed, at this rate I wouldn't get any rest today.

"Come in!" I replied. The pink Rainwing practically dove into the house, the lack of sleep noticeable by the bags under his eyes. "What's wrong? You look like you haven't slept at all." I commented.

"I didn't. I was at the Sand Kingdom delivering the message and I spent all night flying back."

"How come you didn't just wait until morning to come back. I'm sure that Queen Thorn would have let you stay in her palace for one night."

"She offered to let me stay there, but this couldn't wait."

"Jambu get on with it! What couldn't wait?

Instead of answering he simply shoved a letter towards my face before continuing. "She didn't know a thing about the dragons, but a guard did. He said that his town had been attacked by a group of Skywings who set fire to several of their buildings about two weeks ago. He said that two out of the five of them were named Coquelicot and another Amaranth and the one who went by the name of Amaranth had venom across one eye."

At the point he was out of breath and clearly exhausted.

"Go get some rest." I said as gently as possible. "Thanks for the letter."

Nodding, he left and my scales turned a light green. Amaranth was alive. We needed to act fast. With shaking hands a slowly opened the letter.

I'm back! I'll try to update as much as possible, but I'm not sure how often that will be. Even though it's summer I'm still pretty busy.

Chapter Seventeen-The Letter

I unrolled the scroll, but before I could read it I took a few shaky breathes in a fruitless attempt to calm my racing heart.

"I just received a letter from Dark Shadow. He said that all is well at Jade Mountain and Raindew hasn't done anything stupid yet." The male's voice trailed off behind me as the he walked in. "What's wrong?" The joking manner was gone from his voice and I could hear talons thumping against the floor as he made his way over to me.

"Jambu just gave me a letter from one of the Sandwing guards. He said the Amaranth's alive."

Deathbringer was silent for a moment. "What does the letter say?"

""Dear Queen Glory of the Rainwings and Nightwings,."" I paused and looked at Deathbringer. "I really hate all the formalities." I reminded him.

"I know." Came his smug reply, the ghost of a grin stretching across his worried face.

""I have received word of your dire situation and I believe news has befallen me that may be of assistance to you in your time of need. A few weeks ago there was an attack on the town where I grew up, Barren, a small town near the Claws of the Clouds Mountains, a good two hour flight North of Jade Mountain. I was home visiting family at the time and in the middle of the night five Skywings swooped down and began setting buildings on fire as well as stealing food. Nobody was hurt in the attack luckily, but the others were of course startled. When I ran outside to see what the commotion was I could hear them shouting to one another to grab this and that and I was able to get their names.

Coquelicot was a dark red male Skywing with broad shoulders and seemed to be second-in-command.

An older male named Cumulus was a bright red.

A red male with orange around his wings was referred to as Elbus.

The youngest was a female named Valley and she was pale red. She's couldn't have been more then ten.

Lastly, the leader was named Amaranth, she was large, strong, and very fierce. She was a blood-red and had venom across one eye.""

"Well that answers a lot of our questions." Deathbirnger pointed out as I clutched the scroll tightly.

Chapter Eighteen- Consequences

"Glory?"

The first thought that went through my mind was worrying about why my eyelids were so heavy. Me second thought was that I was not in a very comfortable position. Something hard was under my back and my right wing was folded awkwardly against me.

"Glory?"

As the masculine voice repeated itself my third thought popped into my mind, I really wanted to slap Deathbringer.

"Glory?"

Third times the charm. Even though it took effort my eyes snapped open and I glared at the Nightwing above me. "Saying my name repeatedly doesn't help any. It's just really irritating."

"Love you too." Re replied as I slowly stood up.

"Mind telling me exactly what happened?"

"Well you fainted."

"I could put that much together you idiot!" I playfully swatted his wing. He looked overly offended then put his wing around me. In his other hand he was grasping a scroll, which I presumed to be the letter Jambu had delivered earlier.

"You didn't let me finish." He continued, showing absolutely no signs of lightening his grip on me. "As I was saying. You had fainted, probably from him charm," Another swat to the bodyguard's wing, "and just kind of flipped on the floor before I could catch you. You were out for a solid five minutes and were very pale and green. In conclusion you made like a possum and looked like a frog."

"You're simply charming." I responded before shooting him a glare at the love of my life and freeing himself from his clutches. "I need posters of Amaranth and her group around the villages. If any of those sickeningly terrible dragons is spotted I want guards after them immediately. Now if you'll excuse me I need to write a scroll to my friends."

He didn't move at all.

"Go!" I practically shouted, spots of red crawling up my scales.

"Someone missed their suntime today."

Honestly at this point he should have expected me to hit him.

Chapter Nineteen- Confrontation

We're nearing the end guys. AHH!

The idea of writing a scroll soon disintegrated and I decided to fly over to Jade Mountain instead. I was in need of the comfort of my best friends and quite honestly writing up a scroll seemed like both too much work and way too formal at the moment.

I swear the rain forest had come to the conclusion that it should become twice as big though. I felt like I had been flying forever, as if the mountains in the distance were just painted onto the slightly overcast sky and I wasn't actually ever going to reach them. The noisy chirps and squawks coming from lush green foliage below was the only indication at another life for near me.

With pumping purple determined wings and a racing heart I continued my journey to inter tribe school. It seemed as though the world had other plans though.

A slightly larger body tumbled onto mine and took us both down to the forest below. With a startled cry I tried to free myself from the other's grasp only to feel claws sinking into my back. I could feel as some of my blood left me and I prepared my fangs should the dragon and I come face to face.

Slapping through branches in our fall I was almost relieved when we instead of crashing onto a rock we landed in a small pond mixed with blooming algae and brightly colored frogs.

The impact was enough to knock the wind out of me and in the morning I would probably be sporting a few bruises. I had somehow managed to come loose from the barreling dragon's grasp when we hit the water and now as I scrambled to face them I felt as though someone had slapped me.

Amaranth.

She stood in all her glory, teeth bared, shooting me a look that could kill.

"For Queen Scarlet!" Were her only words and then the short distance between us became ever smaller. Throwing myself out of the way I skidded across the muddy ground and spit venom at the vile creature. She maneuvered her head out of the way just in time. It quickly became apparent that she wasn't fighting with skill, but with pure anger and I hope more than anything that I could use this against her.

Numerous scratches were given and received by both parties and I could not have possibly thought of a time estimate. Seemingly driven by one last push she pounced on me and knocked me back into a tree with her pinned against me. Sheer will to survive overcame me and without a second to waster I mustered all my remaining strength and spit venom onto her face. She shrieked and turned away. I spit the deadly goo at her again, this time hitting her torso. The birds went silent as the Skywing's pure agony filled the air around us. I was not finished though and was almost overcome with pity when her cries ceased.

Bleeding and numb I resolved to leave the corpse and took off back to my kingdom, my home, and my family.

That's a wrap folks. I know that I might have left a few loose strings, but I kind of like the story that way. Their story's not done, but the part that we got to saw is.

This was first ever story on Wattpad and it was started almost two years ago back in early May 2017, shortly after I first joined. Looking back I can definitely see how my writing has improved and I'm so grateful to have been given this opportunity.

I'm so thankful for all of you guys and I hoped you enjoyed this.

Bye!
